

Webinar

The Webinar combines the personal interactivity of live facilitation with the technological convenience and reach of E-learning.

Web-based seminars allow participants to interact with a live instructor through their Web browser and telephone. The facilitator can display a PowerPoint presentation, show a video, or capture brainstorming sessions on a whiteboard that appears on the computer screens of all participants simultaneously. Webinars even allow for small break-out groups to be formed with peers who are in other sites around the world. They also provide opportunities to conduct polls and questionnaires.

FOUR REASONS TO CONSIDER THIS OPTION

1) The trainers have proven track records.

There is no need to conduct an elaborate train-the-trainer that involves pulling staff away from their jobs and running the risk of having someone who may not facilitate as well as planned. The presenters are experienced RDR Group trainers who have conducted numerous trainings for major corporations around the country and are subject matter experts.

2) There are no travel costs involved.

Workbooks can be mailed or sent electronically to any location and there is no airfare, hotel, meals, parking or other expenses.

3) Everyone gets trained without exception.

This training option eliminates any excuse for not participating. Small facilities, remote locations, part-time staff, shift workers and departments with only a handful of people can experience these workshops.

4) Live interaction and discussion.

Unlike other computer-based training, webinars allow participants to engage in dialogue with both the instructor and their peers in real time. This makes the experience much more engaging and thought provoking.
